America, to take the place of the Treaty of Arbitration concluded at Washington on the 4th April, 1908. The terms of the new draft are being carefully and sympathetically studied by My Government in Great Britain and will be considered in communication with My Governments in the Dominions.

MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS,

The Estimates for the Public Services will be laid before you in due course.

MY LORDS AND MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS,

Although the condition of affairs in some of the principal industries continues to give cause for serious anxiety, I am glad to observe that in the general state of trade and industry there are many encouraging signs of progressive improvement in both our home and external trade which justify the hope that with co-operation and good-will steady progress will be made in the coming year.

The burdens imposed upon industry and agriculture by the present incidence of local rates have attracted the anxious attention of My Ministers. They are now engaged upon inquiries into the possibility of affording some relief from these burdens to the producing community and into the changes in local government which would thereby be involved.

Proposals

Proposals will be brought before you for amending the law relating to the parliamentary and local government franchise.

Measures will be presented to you for giving effect to certain recommendations of My Commission on National Health Insurance, and for increasing the credit facilities of persons engaged in agriculture.

Among other Bills which you will be invited to pass are measures dealing with the laws relating to the Supreme Court of Judicature and to Arbitration, with the amendment of the Companies Acts, with the valuation for rating purposes of property in London, and with the law relating to the Metropolitan Common Poor Fund.

You will also be asked to consider proposals for the reorganisation of certain of the Departments in Scotland.

Bills dealing with other measures of importance will be introduced and proceeded with as time and opportunity allow.

I pray that the blessing of Almighty God may rest upon your labours.

His Majesty's Most Gracious Speech.

MY LORDS AND MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS,

MY relations with foreign Powers continue to be friendly. It is the constant effort of My Government, in co-operation with the League of Nations, to secure the settlement of international differences and to promote the cause of peace.

I have invited the King of Afghanistan to visit Me in March and I look forward to welcoming His Majesty to My capital. It will be a particular pleasure to Me to receive His Majesty on his first visit to Europe.

The position in China has so far improved as to permit large reductions in the naval and military forces sent to the Far East for the protection of My British and Indian subjects resident in the Concessions, but the situation caused by internal disturbances and civil wars and the consequent insecurity of life and property, both Chinese and foreign, still give cause for anxiety. In spite of these discouraging circumstances, My Government adhere to the declaration of policy published by them a year ago, as the basis on which they are prepared to meet Chinese aspirations when the Chinese can assure satisfactory protection for British lives and property.

On the 29th December last the United States Government communicated to My Ambassador at Washington, for consideration and as a basis for negotiation, the draft of a new Treaty of Arbitration between Myself and the President of the United States of

CANTON'S BEST POLICY.

News from all quarters, now definitely points to a re-establishment of the old friendly relationship between the British and Chinese which—to the detriment of all—was broken nearly three years ago by the strike and boycott. Following the banquet given by General LI TSAI HSIN to the foreign Consuls in Canton comes the report that the negotiation for the sale of the former British Consulate in Canton City has been successfully concluded and that the purchase money of rather more than $100,000 has been paid over to the British authorities. The site of the old Consular Building is to be used by the Canton Political Council and we trust that the deliberations and discussions of that body, in their new headquarters, will be directed towards the best methods of healing the wounds and repairing the injuries caused by the mis-directed policy of its predecessors in office. We have no desire to recall the unhappy events of the past. They inflicted a tremendous amount of unnecessary suffering on the Chinese people and their influence is still seen in the present disorganised condition of the Province. But now that the communist poison, which wrought the damage, has been eliminated to a large extent from the Chinese political system, we can look forward with confidence to better times. General LI TSAI HSIN's dinner in honour of the Foreign Consuls—a function which would have been impossible two years ago—may be regarded as a gesture signifying the return of that friendly intercourse with all nations upon which, it should be remembered, the prosperity of Kwangtung has been built.

In the distinctly better atmosphere now prevailing confidence in commercial circles is slowly reviving. There are, of course, many bandit groups which will have to be dispersed before normal trading conditions are restored, and there are still a good many political-military leaders who will readily join forces with the bandits if they see a favourable opportunity to harass the established government. It is not, therefore, to be expected that all trouble is over but the régime in Canton, we believe, will be sufficiently strong to deal with the mischief-makers providing they do not dissipate their energies in military adventures further afield. There is still a good deal of talk regarding the future position of General CHIANG KAI SHEK and we note that General CHEN MING SHU, who has recently returned to Canton from Swatow, has strongly denounced any suggestion of an anti-CHIANG KAI SHEK movement. In one sense we fully agree with General CHEN. In our view, and we believe in the view of a great many Chinese, Canton should avoid as it would the plague any movement in favour of, or against, any political or military leader or party. The time has come, after three years of turmoil, when Canton should give its undivided attention to its own affairs. If it does this

Cordial Relations.

The report which we published yesterday of the international official gathering at Canton will have been read with the greatest pleasure. It was a happy plan on the part of the Canton Government to invite the foreign Consuls to partake of its hospitality, and the exchange of felicitations cannot but add to the cordiality of the atmosphere. The Canton Government and the Consular Body are alike to be congratulated upon the obviously improved relations obtaining, and especially would we welcome the well-worded speech of our own Consul-General in proposing the toast of the Kwangtung Provincial Government. Mr Brenan appropriately reviewed the circumstances which attach Hongkong and Canton so closely. He referred frankly to the recent breach, but expressed the sincere sentiments of Hongkong as well when he voiced his gratification at the opening of a new period of understanding and co-operation and tendered his hearty wish that the Kwangtung authorities will achieve success in the admittedly difficult task that lies before them. Mr Brenan is eminently qualified for the role of British, and even of foreign, spokesman. The Canton Government is doubtless alive to the fact that Mr. Brenan himself has contributed materially to the happier state of affairs. His recent strict enforcement of the river shipping regulations has been welcomed in responsible circles in Hongkong. Here as well as in Canton it has been felt that the abuse of the protection that follows the British flag has called urgently for restriction. With the better supervision now promised, it may confidently be expected that the British authorities will no longer be placed in the unwelcome position of having to uphold the flag in circumstances of every nature. In this and other matters affecting Kwangtung province, hope association exists between Hongkong and His Majesty's representative at Canton. We have said in the past that we should be better pleased if the Consul-Generalship at Canton were a Hongkong appointment. At the same time the Colony has the greatest confidence in Mr. Brenan and rests assured that while he represents Britain in the neighbour port nothing of the true spirit of Britain's magnanimous policy will be lost. We are left to hope that the exchange of felicitations at Canton will appeal to the populace there as attractively as it appeals to the foreign population of Hongkong. There is unfortunately still room for some doubt on the matter: the less enlightened doubtless find it difficult to shake off suspicion—difficult, in fact, even to make the effort. Time and education alone will finally remove all unjust questionings. Meanwhile, for Hongkong's part we trust that neither by word nor deed will any representative of ours interrupt the evident if gradual process of burying the unhappy past. In fact, the ice having been broken so promisingly we should like to see the breach in the film of coolness widened without delay. Though we take unto this Colony the compliments expressed from and to the Consul-General, we realise that Hongkong is, in many respects, a separate British entity, competent, and perhaps expected, to speak for itself. An exchange of official visits between Hongkong and Canton would be a very appreciable contribution to the reconciliation. This Colony, we feel sure, would warmly welcome a Canton mission. It is a pleasure we promise ourselves at no distant date. The next event will probably be the visit to Canton of the British Minister, Sir Miles Lampson, who comes later this month. He will doubtless find much to interest him in Canton, and his personality is such that we can rely upon him to heighten the friendly impression which last week's banquet has established.

PEACE FUNCTION IN CANTON.

CONSULAR AND OTHER REPRESENTATIVES BANQUETTED BY LI CHAI-SUM.

FRIENDLY RELATIONS RESUMED.

(Our Own Correspondent.)

Canton, Feb. 10.

At Provincial Government Headquarters last evening, a banquet was given in honour of the consular body at Canton, and friendship on the part of the local authorities was the prevailing theme, it was made evident by the consular representatives that that preferred friendship is fairly believed to be genuine, and is mutually reciprocated by all the Foreign Powers.

In responding to the toast "The Kwangtung Provincial Government," British Consul-General, Mr. J. F. Brénan remarked that relations between the Crown Colony of Hongkong and the Province of Kwangtung had unfortunately been interrupted in recent years "largely due to an alien influence which endeavoured to use the Chinese nationalist movement for its own selfish ends."

Toasts were drunk to the Republic of China, and to their Majesties and Presidents of all countries represented at the banquet. General Li Chai-sum proposed the toast "The Consular Body at Canton" and in reply the German Consul-General, the Japanese Consul-General, the American Acting Consul spoke. All of the speeches were to the same point, namely, that this is an epoch in the history of the province of Kwangtung when the most cordial of relations between the Chinese local government and that of every foreign land without distinction must prevail.

The last function of this nature was held about a year ago, since which time, despite many vicissitudes, relations between Chinese and foreigners in Canton have become increasingly cordial, with the result that last night's gathering met under the happiest auspices. Ladies were also invited, and the total gathering numbered about a hundred persons. The principal members of the Canton government were present, including, besides General Li himself, the mayor of Canton, Mr. Lam Man-kai, the chief of Police, Mr. Tang Yin-wa, the Commissioner of Reconstruction,

Mr. Wu Te-chen, the Finance Commissioner, Mr. Feng Tso-wan, the head of the Canton navy, Mr. Chan Chak, the Commissioner for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Chu Chao-hsin, and General Chen Ming-chu, who has recently arrived from Swatow.

The Welcome.
The Provincial Government lighted and decorated for the occasion, and a military band gave musical honours on the arrival of the guests and also played selections during dinner. The guests were first entertained in an ante-room, being afterwards ushered into the main dining hall where an excellent Chinese repast awaited them. General Li Chai-sum gave as his toast "The Consular Body at Canton." Welcoming his guests that evening, General Li went on to refer to the disturbed conditions prevailing in China at the present time and their reactions on world peace. He regretted that this province, in common with other parts of China, was in an unsettled state, but claimed that they in Kuangtung were doing their duty in striving for the maintenance of order and the furtherance of prosperity, thereby helping to contribute to world peace and happiness.

it ought to be sufficiently strong to repel any attack from whatever quarter such may be directed, and with peace in its own borders trade will extend and the revenue grow. The maintenance of order and the development of trade are the sole objects with which the Canton Government should now concern itself and, as far as can be judged from his public speeches, this is Li Tsai Hsia's policy. We sincerely trust, for the sake of the people, that he will succeed in carrying it into effect.

I should also like to take this opportunity of expressing a personal appreciation of the courtesy which has always been shown to myself and my Consular Colleagues by the Commissioner for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Chu Chao-hsin. Mr. Chu is one of China's most notable diplomats who has served his country with distinction in London and Rome and with the League of Nations, and his appointment to his present post is in itself a friendly gesture by the Canton authorities to the foreign representatives.

Ladies and Gentlemen, I ask you to drink to the success of the Kwangtung Provincial Government.

Wu Te-chen's Reply.

Mr. Wu Te-chen then replied as a representative of the Kwangtung Government. He expressed gratification that the international obstacles which had led to misunderstanding in the past had now been done away with, and pointed out that the good relations now prevailing were at one and the same time a manifestation of the good-will existing between Chinese and foreigners and an encouragement to international trade and commerce.

The company finally broke up about 11.30 having spent a very happy and enjoyable evening.

Replies as Senior Consul Dr. Crull remarked that the consular representatives in Canton were actuated by a desire to promote the best relations between China and foreign countries. There had been many obstacles in the way of the fulfilment of this desire, but no nation could thrive in isolation from the others, and for that reason it was to the best interests of both China and the foreign powers that they should work together, and he hoped that no clouds would come to overshadow the existing friendly relations. Dr. Crull asked the company to drink to a happy and prosperous China.

Brief replies were also delivered by the Japanese, American and French Consuls, each of whom endorsed the sentiments expressed by Dr. Crull, adding in each case that their chief desire was for the maintenance and furtherance of good relations between their respective countries and China.

Mr. Brennan's Speech.

Mr J. F. Brennan, who then proposed the toast of "The Kwangtung Provincial Government," spoke as follows:

It has fallen to my lot this evening to undertake the pleasant and honourable duty of proposing the toast of the Kwangtung Provincial Government.

I am indeed glad to have the opportunity of signifying in a public manner the resumption of those friendly relations which have existed for so many years between my countrymen and the people of this province.

The British and the Cantonese have been bound to each other by close commercial ties ever since the foreign trade of this country began to be developed, and this intercourse has been of the greatest value to both nations. We have of course had our disputes and even our wars, but that experience is to be found in the history of all countries. The human race has unfortunately not yet reached that state of development when it can conduct its affairs entirely without conflict, and the great increase of rapid communications throughout the world has brought the nations into closer contact and accentuated differences in customs and ideas. But it is the duty of national representatives by friendly negotiation to remove the causes of friction and to enable the political development of their respective peoples to be fulfilled along their own national lines with mutual sympathy and understanding instead of hatred and recrimination. This, as we know, is not always easy, but nevertheless it should not be so difficult in the case of two nations like Great Britain and China, who really have no conflicting interests but are at one in desiring the furtherance of their trade and commerce.

Way Opened Up.

The proximity of the Colony of Hongkong whose peace and prosperity is bound up with that of this province renders it particularly desirable that British relations with the Provincial Government should be on a friendly footing, and on the other hand this Colony can be of great assistance to the province in dealing with many of its most pressing problems. The good understanding between the two places has unfortunately been interrupted in recent years, an interruption which was largely due to an alien influence which endeavoured to use the Chinese nationalist movement for its own selfish ends. The recent exposure of that evil influence and the expulsion of its agents by the Chinese authorities has opened the way again to normal and friendly intercourse with the liberal nations of the world. It was in anticipation of that result that the British Government declared in its memorandum of December, 1926 its friendly policy and genuine sympathy with Chinese national aspirations, in return for that protection which British interests are entitled to expect from a civilized government, and you will have seen in to-day's press telegrams that that policy has been reaffirmed by His Majesty The King, and by all the party leaders, at the opening of the British Parliament in London.

His Excellency General Li and his present colleagues in Canton have, as we all know, taken an important part in bringing about the present improved state of affairs. You will therefore I am sure join with me in wishing them success in the difficult task which now lies before them; namely, to restore peaceful and prosperous conditions to the much harassed people of this province. So far as the British are concerned I can assure him that we will watch his work with sympathetic interest and will be glad to give him such assistance as may be possible in the circumstances.

For it is a severely practical question. Willing as they may be to meet the demands of Nationalist China, H. M. G. cannot sacrifice legitimate British interests. Their aim is to secure a mutually beneficial regime which will both satisfy Chinese desires and give to British trade and to British traders the necessary guarantees and safeguards.

The full realization of this aim must necessarily take time. Disorganization and chaos in China will delay it. For that reason, it is the earnest hope of my country that the Chinese people may compose their differences and that there may be ultimately emerge a government with whom real progress can be made.

In the meantime, it is our object to live on friendly terms with the actual governing authorities wherever they exist in all parts of China, and to conduct our relations with them in the liberal spirit of our publicly-declared policy. In this manner we hope that the way will be paved and the atmosphere created for an ultimate general settlement which will be mutually satisfactory, mutually beneficial and mutually honourable to both countries.

The atmosphere which we must strive to create must be one of reciprocal good will and respect. And the first step is to try to understand one another's difficulties, and get thoroughly familiar with each other's point of view.

That is the underlying motive of my visit to South China. When I came as British Minister to China, I realized that I could not hope to understand the various questions which arose by dealing with them simply on paper at Peking. It is necessary to have knowledge of the highly varied local conditions. My intention was to travel as much as circumstances permitted to see for myself what conditions were at various places and more important still to establish personal contact with the local authorities.

CANTON.

--- 3 ---

I am very glad to be able to include Canton in my present journey. Both on account of the part which it has played in the rise of the Chinese Nationalist movement, and on account of its proximity to Hongkong, it is particularly important for me to have personal knowledge of this city and to have personal acquaintance with its administrators.

The welcome which you have given me is a happy augury. Indeed, my whole journey has been made most pleasant by the friendly reception accorded me and the great courtesy shown me at each place that I have visited. My journey is not yet over, and it is my earnest hope that something concrete may come of it, and that it may prove to mark an important stage in the improvement of our mutual relations.

I thank you for the cordial reception you have given me today. In my turn, I propose a toast to the improvement of our mutual relations, and to the prosperity of China.

JAPANESE CONSULATE GENERAL
CANTON.

Your Excellency and Gentlemen:- It is a very great pleasure to be your guest here today, and it is a great pleasure to have this opportunity of meeting so distinguished an assemblage of the officials of the Canton government. It has long been my desire to visit Canton, and it is only recently that I have been able to carry out that desire. As Your Excellency very truly observed, it was with Canton that the future of the country lies. I am particularly glad that I have the opportunity of coming here, and to have this great privilege of meeting His Excellency General Lee Tsai-sam.

Diplomacy is often credited with concealed objects and tortuous methods. But diplomacy in reality is simple, both in aim and method. Its object is to promote good and peaceful relations. This is particularly true of the diplomacy of Great Britain towards China, and it cannot be over-emphasized that this is the whole basis of H. M. G's policy.

Great Britain has no political object in China. "Our object is trade, and all we want is to live in friendship with China and to obtain, by agreement with her, conditions under which British trade can be carried on in security.

Now conditions have been for many years abnormal in China and our relations have been correspondingly abnormal. You on your side have demanded far-reaching alterations in the treaty position between the two countries. There is much sympathy in Great Britain with those demands. I assure you that my country is well disposed and not antagonistic towards Nationalism.

The policy of Great Britain has been publicly declared in the so-called Christmas of December, 1926, and in the Treaty Revision offer of 1927. By that policy we still stand, and if there has not been more progress in its execution that is because conditions here in China have rendered it impossible.

Some progress has, however, been made, and H. M. G. have already shown their sincerity not by mere words but by deeds, and they are fully prepared to do more as and when conditions permit.
