Your Excellency,

I have the honor to inform Your Excellency that the Japanese Government, in view of the country's inadequate supply of indigenous foodstuffs for domestic consumption, and its dependence upon a large-scale importation, is desirous of acceding, subject to approval by the Japanese National Diet, to the International Wheat Agreement which came into force as of July 1, 1949. If admitted as a member, the Japanese Government will be ready to assume the duties and obligations imposed upon all signatories and also to guarantee the annual importation of wheat and/or flour to the amount of 1,200,000 tons for the duration of the Agreement, namely until July 31, 1953.

It is respectfully requested that Your Excellency will be good enough to submit this desire of the Japanese Government to the Secretary-General of the International Wheat Council, which, it is earnestly hoped, will give it favorable consideration and approve Japan's accession to the International Wheat Agreement.

I avail myself of this opportunity to renew to Your Excellency my highest consideration.

Minister for Foreign Affairs.

FCM No. 1017(LCR)

4 October 1949

1. Reference: Memorandum of Japanese Liaison Section, 9 September 1949, subject as above.
2. The Second Demobilization Bureau Liquidation Division reports on the subject matter as follows:

No records are kept in the custody of the said Division concerning the subject matter except an official record of the instruction of the Minister of the Navy ordering naval officers to attend the Princes who were to be dispatched, an abstract of which is enclosed herewith. Investigations, therefore, were conducted of Prince Takamatsu, Prince Kuni, and other various persons formerly held positions likely to have been related to the subject matter. The following report has been made on the information obtained from the above investigations and after due consideration of the circumstances existed at that time. The present report is, therefore, believed to be almost true.

- a. Full name of each Prince.
  - (1) His Imperial Highness Prince Takamatsu (Nobuhito).
  - (2) His Imperial Highness Prince Kuni (Asumikira).
- b. Itinerary of each trip giving specific dates.
  - (1) Departure:

The above two Princes were ordered informally by His Majesty on 22 August 1945. Prince Takamatsu departed from Atsugi on the following day on airplane for Kyushu via Meiji Air Base (Hekikai-gun, Aichi-ken). Prince Kuni departed from the office of Naval Ministry by automobile on the 22nd or 23rd of August.

- (2) Schedule of tours:

Prince Takamatsu was scheduled to visit the Tokai and Kyushu areas, and Prince Kuni the Kwanto and Ou areas. It is, however, conceivable that both Princes had not any definite plan for their itineraries and intended to proceed to any place as occasion demands. It is supposed that under the circumstances of that time attention was paid, in the western district, especially to the air bases in the Kanoya and Oita areas and also to special attack corps bases located in Sasabe and the Inland Sea etc., and in the eastern district, to the air bases in the Atsugi and Kamuyama areas.

Prince Takamatsu conveyed an Imperial Message at the Meiji Air Base to the principal staffs gathered from neighboring air force units on August 23 and left there for Kyushu on the 24th of the same month, but he failed to cross over the Susuka Mountains owing to the bad weather. In the meantime, any aerial navigation of the Japanese plane was prohibited.

Prince Kuni had the principal staffs gathered at Kamuyama and conveyed them the Imperial Message on August 22 (or August 23) and returned to Tokyo on the same day.

(3) Return and Report to His Majesty:

Prince Takamatsu returned to Tokyo on the afternoon of 24 August 1945, Prince Kuni on the very day he departed. And on 25 August 1945 the two Princes were granted an audience to His Majesty and made report to him on their mission.

c. Mission of each Prince.

Their mission was to convey the Imperial Message concerning the termination of the war to the armed units in each district and make them fully acquainted with the true intention of His Majesty to terminate the war peacefully and promptly.

d. By whose orders were the Princes dispatched.

The two Princes were dispatched on the said mission by Imperial Order which they received on 22 August 1945 when they had audience of His Majesty. It is, however, considered that the project might have been forwarded to His Majesty through the Chief Aid-de-Camp by the Minister of the Navy for the sake of formality.

e. Names of all important members of each party.

(1) Attendants on Prince Takamatsu:

Ex-Captain IKEDANI, Teuguo
Ex-Commander MIENO, Takeshi
Ex-Commander NOSE, Shōgo (military attache)

0359

(2) Attendants on Prince Kuni:

Ex-Captain INOUECHI, Rikichi
Ex-Commander EMURA, Hichiro
Ex-Commander SHIMIZAKI, Shigetaka (military attache)

Reference is made to the attached copy of the Minister's instruction concerning appointment of the attendants.

f. Why were the Princes selected.

In ordinary times His Majesty could dispatch his aide-de-camp to convey his commands. However, in such an emergency as termination of the war when the situations were so grave as to indicate even possibility of riotous activities among the armed forces some other persons most likely to give stronger impression as representatives of His Majesty were considered necessary and preferable for this sort of mission, and therefore, above Princes were selected, it is supposed.

g. Other available information concerning the project.

Both Princes discontinued their itineraries in the early stage. Main reasons are supposed to have been:

- (1) Japanese emissaries sent to Manila in compliance with the request of the Allied Forces returned and a peaceful entry of the Allied Forces in Japan proper was made foreseen.
- (2) In accordance with the order of the Allied Forces the Japanese Imperial General Headquarters prohibited all aerial navigation except inevitable transportation at and after 0000, 22 August 1945 and no exception was allowed at and after 1800, 24 August 1945.
- (3) Efforts exerted to convey the Imperial Message by other means (getting together all commanders-in-chief, etc) began to produce a good effect upon armed forces of every district, and their readiness for reception of peaceful entry of the Allied Forces has been seen more assuredly.

3. The Demobilization Bureau, Registration Relief Agency reports that the former Japanese Army had no connection with the dispatch of the princes within Japan proper about 20 August 1945.

4. Although another investigation was made by the Imperial Household Agency, no records concerning the subject matter have been in the keeping of the said Agency, and therefore, no further information has been obtained.

- e. FOM letter No. 914(LCR), 22 September 1949, subject: Information on HIGASHI, Matsuo.
- f. Legal Section's check sheet No. 20819 LS-Z, 29 September 1949, subject as a above.

2. As a result of investigation made by the Second Demobilization Bureau Liquidation Division, it is ascertained that HIGASHI, Matsuo, as mentioned in reference 1e is the right reading of the name. Discrepancy is due to the fact that the name can be read either HIGASHI, Matsuo, or AZUMA, Sueo, when it is written in Chinese ideographs.

3. As to the discrepancy in the age of death of HIGASHI, Matsuo between the certificate issued by the town head (inclosure to reference 1c) and the certificate issued by the physician (inclosure to reference 1d), in both of which the name has been given as AZUMA, Sueo, it is presumed that the age of death described in the certificate issued by the physician is incorrect. Except for the age of death, the two certificates are consistent with each other. Inquiry is being made of the physician by the National Rural Police Headquarters to make sure on this point.

JAPANESE NATIONAL RAILWAYS

SUBJECT: Baggage Destined for, but Prevented from being Shipped to, Korea or China.

1. Immediately before the end of the Pacific War -- to be more precise, from April to July, 1945 -- the then Ministry of Transportation accepted, for free conveyance, baggage destined for Korea, Manchuria and China. But the rigorous air raids prevailing at the time prevented railway ferries from carrying such baggage out of Japan proper. As a natural consequence, they were held at various stations, such as Niigata, Shimonoseki and Hakata-ko. Meanwhile, the war came to an end. After the war's end some of the baggage were shipped back to their despatching stations and to their owners. There were also about 1,000 pieces of baggage, belonging mainly to Koreans, which were stored in some transfer stations, as there was little prospect of their being returned to their owners.

2. This came to the notice of the Koreans' League and the League demanded more than once that these pieces of baggage be delivered to that organization. Now the League was no doubt an organization of Koreans, but it could not very well be acknowledged as a representative body beneficial to the baggage owners resident in Korea. So the rail authorities replied to the League that they could not possibly see their way clear to deliver them as a whole to the League, but that they had no objection to delivering such baggage as were legitimately claimed by power of attorney, if not by League members who happened to be their owners.

Thereupon the League requested that a list of baggage be submitted, so that it might get in contact with their legitimate owners in Japan or in Korea.

This request was promptly complied with. But at the same time the rail authorities informed the League of their intention to deliver the baggage in question to the Korean Government as soon as a peace treaty was signed.

3. Time went on. The rail authorities came to see no wisdom in waiting for the conclusion of a peace treaty, thereby lessening the value of the baggage through possible damage or deterioration and increasing the storage cost involved. They asked for GHQ advice and suggestions through the Repatriation Section of the Central Liaison Office of the Japanese Government. The verbal suggestion from the GHQ was that such baggage be regarded as repatriates' baggage and be disposed of accordingly under the directions of the 8th Army, USA. In consequence the rail authorities wrote a note to the 8th Army Headquarters, submitting the list of the baggage at the same time. But no settlement was reached. The Korean Diplomatic Mission was later called upon to give their cooperation on this question, but nothing was done to solve the problem.

4. A considerable number of such baggage were delivered to their consignors whom it was possible to identify, which was indeed a task of both great expense and conscience to the NRC. The rest are still kept in warehouses of the NRC. But, on the contrary, most of the parcels, baggage or goods shipped for Japan from Korea immediately before the war ended were, it was then acknowledged, kept at Pusan and other stations for the same reason. It seems, however, that all of them have already been disposed of in Korea as it thinks fit. Therefore to send back those in the NRC custody to Korea and other countries will become a burden quite unbearable to the NRC.

With respect to the parcels, baggage or goods which it is impossible to deliver, or which require much expenses to be kept in custody or are liable to become lower in value due to rotting, change in quality, etc., the railway will, according to the Japanese laws and regulations, convert their value and pay consignors their price. In this case, the right of ownership of them will be transferred to the railway after the expiration of the period of six month public notification, if it is impossible to deliver them or their converted price to their owners owing to the fact that their consignors are not ascertainable or to other causes for which the railway is not responsible. Therefore, the simplest and most economic way to dispose of the said baggage is to convert their value in the presence of the representatives of the Korean Government and deliver them their price converted.

For the baggage for China and North Korea, it is also deemed reasonable to treat them in the same way to deliver their price to their respective Governments.

5. A considerable number of the baggage in the NRC custody have already been delivered to their legitimate claimants in Japan. As for the quantity of those not yet delivered and still in the custody of the NRC, it is requested that the accompanying table be referred to.
